Extra-curricular lessons taken during the school day can save precious family time. The convenience factor must be weighed against the possibility that some children may lose focus on academic goals or that their class day may become too diluted.

Student participation in extra-curricular lessons is monitored by the teachers and administration. If they feel that a student is or could be over-extended, lessons must be postponed until academic and adjustment concerns are settled. Extra-curricular lessons can only be scheduled when the school is confident that there will be no interference with academic classes.

To give Pre-Kindergarten, Kindergarten, and 1st grade students a proper start, they may not begin extra-curricular lessons during the class day until October. It is suggested that children in Pre-Primary and Grades 1-3 do not take more than one lesson or extra-curricular class during the school week.

Students who take private or group lessons have the responsibility to notify the instructor if they are going to miss their lesson for any reason (illness, field trips, doctor’s appointments, etc.) Without timely notice, fees must be charged.

FINE ARTS
