The Ethics Institute at Kent Place School, in partnership with Montclair State University’s Feliciano Center for Entrepreneurship and Innovation, is running a coed summer program for high school students on Ethical Entrepreneurship. This one-week program combines ethics, product design, and entrepreneurship to help build the skills to become socially responsible leaders who can take an idea from incubation to creation. Experts in the fields of ethics, innovation, and business will guide students through various projects in the MIX Lab at Montclair State University.
